BP said its capped-off well appeared to be holding steady Friday morning, almost midway into a white-knuckle waiting period in which engineers watched the pressure gauges for signs of a leak. Results monitored from control rooms on ships at sea and hundreds of miles away at the company's U.S. headquarters in Houston showed the oil staying inside the cap, rather than escaping through any undiscovered breaches, BP PLC vice president Kent Wells aid on a conference call.

MEDICARE FRAUD
VO :20 SOT:21

A federal Medicare fraud indictment was unsealed Friday, resulting in the arrest of 11 Detroit area residents, some of who are doctors and nurses. According to US Attorney General Eric Holder, dozens were arrested in the five targeted cities- Miami, Houston, New York City, Baton Rouge and Detroit. This is the third such crackdown in Detroit since May, 2009, resulting in the indictment of 94 people involved in $92 million in bad Medicare billings. Friday's Detroit indictment involves about $35 million in Medicare fraud.

OBAMA WEELKY ADDRESS
VO :45

President Barack Obama says Senate Republicans are playing politics with America's recovery. In his weekly radio and Internet address, Obama strikes a deeply partisan tone, saying the GOP leadership has chosen to "filibuster our recovery and obstruct our progress." He accuses Republicans of blocking votes that would extend benefits to the unemployed and increase lending to small businesses. Obama says those measures would breath life into the economic recovery.

The flow of oil in the Gulf of Mexico is stopped for now, but it's possible the past three days will be only a brief reprieve. The government's point man on the crisis, retired Coast Guard Adm. Thad Allen, has decided that after testing on the new cap is complete, the cap will be hooked up to pipes leading to ships on the surface. Those ships would then collect the oil. That likely means releasing crude back into the water temporarily to relieve pressure. It still would not be gushing at the rate it had been before BP's latest fix.

Engineers monitoring BP Plc's damaged well in the Gulf of Mexico detected seepage on the ocean floor that could mean problems with the cap that has stopped oil from gushing into the water, the U.S. government's top oil spill official said on Sunday. Earlier on Sunday, BP officials had expressed hope that the test of the cap which began Thursday could continue until a relief well can permanently seal the leak next month. Oil gushed from the deepsea Maconda well for nearly three monthsuntil the new cap was put in place last week.

IMMIGRANT YOUTH AND SUPPORTERS GATHER IN NATION'S CAPITAL TO RALLY FOR "DREAM ACT"
LOURDES MELUZA. WASHINGTON, DC
PKG 2:03

NCLR (National Council of La Raza), the largest national Latino civil rights and advocacy organization in the United States, this week welcomes hundreds of immigrant youth from across the country who are gathering in our nation's capital to organize public activities, including a graduation ceremony, a rally outside congressional offices, and lobby visits to Capitol Hill, to urge action on the "Development, Relief, and Education for Alien Minors (DREAM) Act" (S. 729). The "DREAM Act" is bipartisan legislation that would remove many of the barriers that immigrant youth confront due to their lack of legal status. The bill would restore the right of states to determine residency requirements for higher education benefits and establish a path to legal status for immigrant youth who are long-time residents of the United States and who satisfy certain educational requirements. The "DREAM Act" was reintroduced in Congress in March 2009, and this week youth and their allies will come together to show their support and ask Congress to advance this legislation. NCLR is part of a broad alliance of national and local groups in support of the bill.

LATINO GROUP SUES NEB. CITY OVER IMMIGRATION LAW
VO :17

A Latino civil rights group is suing a Nebraska city to stop its new ordinance that bars residents from hiring or renting homes to illegal immigrants. The Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund filed the lawsuit Wednesday in federal court "to protect immigrants from unlawful, local regulation of immigration" and challenges to constitutional and federal authority. Fremont city attorney Dean Skokan says he couldn't comment because he hadn't yet seen the lawsuit. The lawsuit targets the city's illegal-immigration ordinance that voters approved in June. The ban is set to go into effect on July 29.

OBAMA SIGNS FINANCE REFORM BILL
VO :22

US President Barack Obama signed into law on Wednesday an overhaul of banking and Wall Street regulations that he says will end many of the practices that sent the US economy into the worst recession since the 1930s. The law, pushed through mainly by Democrats in Washington's deeply partisan environment, comes almost two years after the near financial meltdown in 2008 in the United States that was felt around the globe. The legislation gives the government new powers to break up companies that threaten the economy, shines more light on the financial markets that escaped the oversight of regulators and creates a new agency to guard consumers in their financial transactions.

DEPORTATION INCREASES DURING OBAMA
BLANCA R. VILCHEZ- NUEVA YORK
PKG 2:12

The Immigration and Customs Enforcement agency expects to deport about 400,000 people this fiscal year, nearly 10 percent above the Bush administration's 2008 total and 25 percent more than were deported in 2007. The pace of company audits has roughly quadrupled since President George W. Bush's final year in office. The effort is part of President Obama's larger project "to make our national laws actually work," as he put it in a speech this month at American University. Partly designed to entice Republicans to support comprehensive immigration reform, the mission is proving difficult and politically perilous.

SB 1070 POLITICAL CONSECUENSES
LOURDES MELUZA. WASHINGTON, DC
PKG 2:04

A U.S. judge's ruling blocking key parts of Arizona's immigration law could bolster President Barack Obama's standing among Hispanics and energize Republican foes who back the tough law. U.S. District Judge Susan Bolton weighed in on the festering American debate over illegal immigration that has implications for Nov. 2 congressional elections. Obama's Democrats could get a boost from Hispanics who have been disenchanted with his inability to advance an overhaul of the U.S. immigration system. The Hispanic vote is expected to be increasingly important in the years ahead. Negotiations between the White House and the congressional leadership have gone nowhere on the potent political issue of immigration and the issue is considered dead for the year. Both Democrats and Republicans have tried to attract Hispanics to their parties and thus far Democrats have largely won the battle.

SEN. GRAHAM PROPOSAL

VO :22

Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-S.C.) announced Wednesday night that he is considering introducing a constitutional amendment that would change existing law to no longer grant citizenship to the children of immigrants born in the United States. Currently, the 14th Amendment grants citizenship to any child born within the United States. But with 12 million illegal immigrants living in the United States, Graham said it may be time to restrict the ability of immigrants to have children who become citizens just because they are born within the country.

OBAMA SMALL BUSINESS

VO:25

U.S. President Barack Obama Saturday accused Republicans of holding American small businesses "hostage to politics" after Republican senators refused to back a $30 billion small-business lending package. Senate Republicans blocked the package Thursday, dealing a fresh blow to Obama's efforts to show Americans, in the midst of a tough election year, that his administration is focused on tackling stubbornly high unemployment. With opinion polls showing eroding support for Obama's handling of the economy, Democrats fear voters will punish them for the 9.5 percent unemployment rate come November, when 435 seats in the House of Representatives and 37 of the 100 seats in the Senate will be in play in mid-term elections.

OIL SPILL LATEST

VO :20

BP's new boss says it's time for a "scaleback" in cleaning up the Gulf of Mexico oil spill. Federal officials say there is no way the crude could reach the East Coast. And fishing areas are starting to reopen. There were several signs Friday that the era of thousands of oil-skimming boats and hazmat-suited beach crews is giving way to long-term efforts to clean up, compensate people for their losses and understand the damage wrought. Local fishermen are doubtful, however, and say oil remains a bigger problem than BP and the federal government are letting on. Other people contend the impact of the spill has been overblown, given that little oil remains on the Gulf surface, but Bob Dudley, who heads BP's oil spill recovery and will take over as CEO in October, rejected those claims.
