ANASTASIA'S STORY (Mail Order Bride) – 3 Parts
Chris Wallace; Greg Fisher; Camille Elhassani
A grisly murder mystery that the victim would help solve...from the grave. This is the tale of Anastasia King, beautiful blonde Russian teen, who, in a hurry to make something better of her life and fueled by fairytale fantasies of America, left her family and native homeland, Kyrgystan, to travel 9-thousand miles to Seattle and into the arms of Indle King. Found through the personal ads, Indle was far from mail-order bride Anastasia's Rhett Butler dreams. Physical abuse, lies about his job, and mounting sexual demands from his "princess," later forced Anastasia to flee back to her parents. She was never seen alive again. Chris Wallace investigates Seattle's famous mail order bride murder. Implicated were husband Indle and his tenant, Dan Larson, a convicted sex offender, who would eventually admit to strangling Anastasia with a necktie. A dream of a better future gone seriously awry.

LOVE SONG (Diane Waren)
Cynthia McFadden; David Perozzi; Devon Binch
You've never met her...but undoubtedly her songs are some of your all-time romantic favorites. The proof? She's the most successful female composer ever, with a music catalogue estimated at half a billion dollars, containing songs that have sold on more albums than the Beatles, Elton John, and Elvis Presley combined! Tonight, meet the mystery woman behind the music that tops the charts. She's the person stars call when they need a love song...a true song-writing machine.

FLIGHT OF COURAGE -- (Sweeney) - 1 part
Diane Sawyer; Dennis O'Brien; Kate Sheekey; Gina Pampinella
As hijackers were commandeering American Airlines Flight 11 on September 11 - with the North Tower of the World Trade Center as their ultimate target - veteran flight attendants Amy Sweeney and Betty Ong calmly called airline officials to tell them what was happening. For the first time, Sweeney and Ong's colleagues speak with Diane Sawyer and describe what was said in those final phone calls, and the women's families discuss the bravery they displayed while chaos was breaking out around them. Sweeney and Ong remained calm - and apparently kept passengers calm - while under tremendous duress, and their calls relayed crucial information that investigators have used to reconstruct what happened aboard the plane that tragic day.

KEEP YOUR CHILD SAFE -- (Child Abduction) - 1 part
Chris Wallace; Terry Lichstein
Senior correspondent Chris Wallace investigates just how easy it is for a child to be lured away from a playground, and into the command of a murderous kidnapper. Think your children know better than to trust a stranger? Think again. These Washington parents taught their kids basic safety precautions when approached by a stranger, or so they thought. With just a picture of a puppy and a plea for help, renowned child safety expert Kenneth Wooden had these kids following in his footsteps right out of the park. Chris Wallace has the prevention tips to keep your children safe from abductors you can't afford to miss.

A NATURAL BEAUTY -- (Carrie Otis) - 2 parts
Cynthia McFadden; Jackie Payson
Cynthia McFadden speaks with supermodel Carrie Otis, a former waif who has done something unthinkable in the fashion industry: she has gone from a size two to a size twelve, and has forged a thriving new career as a 155-pound cover girl. Carrie Otis reveals the haunting price she paid to maintain a perfect body, and an unforgettable mission that finally inspired the model to change her life.

DOLLARS AND SCENTS -- (San Francisco Bank Robber) - 1 part
Chris Cuomo; Amy Rosenberg; Susan Welsh
San Francisco air traffic controller Rick Davis made over $100,000 a year, yet was still in financial ruin. His solution? A nine-month crime spree of bank heists. His defense? A cow made him do it. Watch Rick Davis explain his secret double life to correspondent Chris Cuomo...at work landing jumbo jets, when he was off, a bandit in sunglasses robbing banks...Amy Rosenberg producing.

LIVING LARGE -- (Tycoons) -- 1 part
Correspondent Brian Ross; Producer Jill Rackmill; Support Gerilyn Curtin and Emily Holland
The current wave of accounting scandals is rocking the financial world and shining a spotlight on the issue of corporate greed. Chief Investigative Correspondent Brian Ross reports that while embattled companies like WorldCom and Tyco are struggling to stay afloat, their former chief executives continue to live the good life. Meanwhile, shareholders must spend the summer sweating it out, waiting to see if their investments will ever regain their value.

THE TRUTH ABOUT LYING -- (Lying) – 1 part
Correspondent Diane Sawyer; Producer Ann Sorkowitz; Support Kate Sheekey
Diane Sawyer explores lying, one of the most fundamental yet rarely discussed aspects of human behavior, in a report that originally aired on March 15, 2001. Most of us don't think of ourselves as chronic liars. But Sawyer finds that we don't realize just how frequently - and easily - we resort to stretching the truth to suit our own purposes. In fact, as "Primetime Thursday" cameras discover, our ability to lie only gets better as we grow older. Cameras follow people at work, at home and in social situations to witness how often they lie and for what reasons. While most of us value honesty, studies show that the best liars also tend to have the best social skills and become leaders and achievers. So what does this all say about our society? Has lying become more socially acceptable, or even expected behavior?

FUNNY MAN -- (Dana Carvey) – 1 part
Correspondent Elizabeth Vargas; Producer Jackie Payson; Support Eric Strauss and Amy Hope
Comedian Dana Carvey is the man of many voices whose celebrity impersonations and Saturday Night Live characters have become part of our pop culture lexicon. The star of the new movie Master of Disguise - in which he has 36 different identities -- talks with Elizabeth Vargas about how his career skyrocketed and then almost came to a sudden, tragic end. He details how his 1998 heart bypass surgery went horribly wrong and his career came to a halt for two years during his recovery. Now, the funnyman tells Vargas he has a clean bill of health and is glad to be back making people laugh again.

ANTONIO AND MELANIE - 2 parts
Diane Sawyer; Producers Kristen Strand and Kate Sheekey; Support LaNeice Collins
Diane Sawyer discovers the dynamic behind this star-studded couple...the mythic Antonio Banderas and queen of "Defy It!" talk movies, children, love, and aging. From his days as a policeman's son knowing no English...to the young Latin lover Madonna "discovered" and Hollywood seized...Antonio's fairytale dreams of Hollywood are now a fantasy life-come-true, as husband to Melanie, father of three, owner of a famed Hollywood estate, with a new movie out soon, the sequel to Spy Kids II. And Melanie: famously direct...the comical way she met Antonio...from her troubled times on Nocor to the new, improved actress taking one day at a time. Diane Sawyer and the unstoppable pair discuss.

END OF THE ROAD (Oklahoma Update) – 1 part
Elizabeth Vargas; Producer Jon Meyersohn; Support Chris Orchard
Oklahoma Update: A wife and lover caught coming back to the U.S. 3 months after they disappeared, now ordered to stand trial for the first-degree murder of her estranged husband...and the prosecutor says he'll seek the death penalty--for both. Witnesses at a preliminary hearing said the couple had been having an affair...for more than a year-and-a-half. Allegations abound, what will the judge decide? Elizabeth Vargas investigates.

THE KINDNESS OF STRANGERS (Gander Update) - 1 part
Jay Schadler; Producers Jude Dratt, David Perozzi; Support Jason Rovou
Gander Update: Before 9/11 no one knew of it. But when airline upon airline diverted planes to Gander's tiny airport that fateful day, this remote Canadian town and its citizens stopped everything to weave a heart-warming fabric of care and support for bewildered travelers...a multi-day display of human kindness which Jay Schadler finds will always be remembered. Updates from Gander and memories of 9/11.

STALKING THE RIPPER -- Jack the Ripper - 3 parts
Diane Sawyer; Producer Lee Hoffman; Support Jason Potts
Diane Sawyer revisits the tale of history's most notorious sexual serial killer ...and the woman who claims she knows--with certainty--who he is. Enter the terrifying world of Jack the Ripper...whose identity best-selling crime writer Patricia Cornwell began hunting across years and continents...spending six million dollars of her own money and commandeering a team of forensic experts--determined to crack the case. As Cornwall puts it, "nobody deserves to die in that fashion, and nobody deserves to get away with it. I don't care if it happened yesterday or 100 years from now." Jack the Ripper has eluded identification for 113 years...will he be revealed tonight?

DEAL WITH THE DEVIL - Border Crossing -- 2 parts
John Quinones; Producer Bert Rudman; Support Vivian Hernandez-Ortiz
"The Road of the Devil": an intimidating name given to the scorching stretch of Arizona desert along the Mexican border where the temperature can skyrocket to 130 degrees...in the shade...and water simply can't be found. John Quinones embarks on a dangerous journey across this no-man's land where thousands walk daily, into hellish climes where hundreds have died...more than 80 already this summer. Why do they do it? For one reason only: to find a better life.

WHATEVER IT TAKES: A CHILD'S LAST CHANCE (Wilderness Therapy) -- 5 parts
Correspont: Chris Cuomo; Producers: Dennis O'Brien and Jim DuBreuil; Support James Wang
When nothing's worked...and everything been tried...they come here: to the counselors The Catherine Freer Wilderness Trek Program. Call it the final stop on the last-chance trail-these are teenagers whose parents have tried everything to connect with their children, who are suffering from addling emotional, scholastic, behavioral, and drug problems so severe their families are running out of time. Chris Cuomo ventures deep into the Nevada wilderness...on a search for the secret to saving a troubled teen. An extreme twenty-one day trek and a three-day "solo" excursion constitute a grueling encounter with nature and themselves. Chris Cuomo asks, does it work? Does wilderness therapy truly bring parents and children closer together--or merely push them further away? An encore presentation of a startling encounter, tonight we check in with the teens we followed and see where they are now. For some, the results are inspiring, others were not so lucky.

MAKING BABIES (Cara's Baby) -- 2 parts
John Quinones; Producer Joan Martelli; Support Kate Sheekey, Eric Strauss, Alan Esner, Ruth Iwano
Two families, whom we tracked for two years: a husband in wife in Virginia, desperate but unable to have a child, and a couple in Atlanta, determined to help them, despite the fact they had never met. For Greg and Cara Vest, adoption was not a solution. For Bob and Suzanne Gray, fertility treatments were familiar ground -- they had already conceived four children with the help of cutting-edge medical procedures--which left 23 additional frozen embryos remaining. What the Grays decided to do for the Vests was surprising. Equally so the fact their donated baby would have no genetic material in common with its new parents...and look more like the Grays children. In this age of moral crisis and modern medicine, John Quinones asks "what does it really mean to be a parent?"

ALIVE AGAIN (Behind the Mask) -- 3 parts
Charles Gibson; Producers Paul and Holly Fine
He gives the hopeless a chance to live again. Bob Barron: master of disguise, who turned his talents as a CIA spy-outfitter toward more charitable work--fashioning prostheses for persons so horribly disfigured by sickness and calamity they would not venture out of their homes, and possessed anything but a normal life. Charles Gibson with an encore performance of the man who helps ordinary people in extraordinary ways, and updates on some of his most challenging clients--people scarred by cancer and accidents, but with their new devices so convincing, able to pick up the pieces and enter their worlds again.

63 REASONS TO HOPE (WTC Babies) -- 5 parts
Diane Sawyer; Producer Kate Harrington; Co-Producers Jenn Lew and Jude Dratt; Support Maura Riley, Sally Hawkins, Marcia Biggs, Christy Tobin, Jason Potts, Emily Holland
If anyone can be called the future it the babies of 9/11. If anyone has been born with the weight of history, it is they. Diane Sawyer and aPrimetime Special Event: the 63 babies born since 9/11--36 boys and 27 girls--they coo, they cry, they eat their toes-and they are the main reason their mothers--the 61 widows of 9/11--still get up in the morning--because life must go on. It is a beautiful and searing sight as Primetime brings them together for a day at the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, for a day of laughter and tears. Some we have met before-Lisa Beamer, whose husband Todd, onboard Flight 93, became famous for yelling out "let's roll!"--Bararaheen Ashrafi, whose traditional Muslim dress has inspired prejudice, but was also a victim of the attack-and Barbara Atwood, whose firefighter husband Gerald, proud member of Ladder 21, fearlessly charged into the WTC, never to be seen again. Many we now meet for the first time, as they share the highs and lows of the most dramatic year of their lives. They say that it's only in this sorority of widows that they can freely talk about the emotional toll...of waiting for bodies to be identified, dealing with the financial worries for the future, and giving birth without a husband at their side. And then Primetime attempts the impossible-assembling all the babies for one shot! Diane asks the question: how many people does it take to corral 63 bouncing babies into one photo? 63 Reasons to Hope is about the universal dance of motherhood, the bitter and the sweet...a portrait of life's little gifts...63 reasons to smile, wonder and hope...the babies of 9/11.

SLEEPING WITH THE ENEMY (Saddam's Mistress) - 3 parts
Claire Shipman; Producers Joan Martelli and Chris Vlasto; Support Eric Strauss
A man whose face glares menacingly from the cover of every magazine and front-page of every newspaper...whose arsenal terrifies us in every television broadcast and daily ignites the global policy debate--stretching America's defense capabilities and the public's nerves to capacity--dividing the Bush camp and its allies. He is a man rarely seen in public but who terrifies with his power and potential to destroy. He is Saddam Hussein. Claire Shipman ventures into a heart of darkness to meet the woman who for three decades was closest to his heart, shared his most intimate moments, and received his confidential intelligence. In an extraordinary Primetime Exclusive, the woman who says she was Saddam's mistress shares what life was like being romanced by the world's most brutal dictator. According to U.S. intelligence, what she reveals may prove especially damaging to Saddam-even destabilize his government. The stakes could not be higher, the revelations more shocking, or the consequences more uncertain.

THE MANY FACES OF IRAN (Iran Axis of Evil) - 2 parts
Chris Wallace; Producer Jon Meyersohn; Support Camille Elhassani
It is branch three in the treacherous triad of Bush's "Axis of Evil," but how does Iran function specifically in the organism comprising Iraq and North Korea? Tonight, Chris Wallace takes you inside the heart of the other Middle Eastern country that keeps U.S. policymakers on the edge of their seats and at the height of defense vigilance. America has no formal relations with Iran. We do not trade, share ideas, or even communicate... and history tells a fierce story why: for thirty years, the schism created by the Islamic Revolution which led to the taking of American hostages has kept us enemies, and when the U.S. took Iraq's side during the Iran-Iraq war more than a decade ago, the rift only deepened... But what exactly is

Iran? How does its nuclear program function? What is its political persuasion? How viable is its economic wherewithal? Is it a nation of terror--or a potential friend?

DANIELLE'S STORY – van Dam -- (3 parts)
Charles Gibson; Producers Jackie Payson and Dennis O'Brien; Field Producer Jenn Lew; Support Eric Strauss, Jason Potts
Danielle van Dam: a name that joins others whose lives were brutally cut short during this summer of lost girls. Charles Gibson in a Primetime Exclusive with Damon and Brenda van Dam, Danielle's parents, who lived just two doors down from their daughter's killer, David Alan Westerfield -- a man Danielle sold Girl Scout cookies to days earlier and whom Brenda brushed shoulders with at a local bar the night of her daughter's disappearance. What life has been like for these parents is anything but easy...Charlie asks the agonizing 'what if's?', learns of their coming home to unlocked doors and trial that would bring the van Dams themselves into the spotlight -- due to a bizarre social life of spouse swapping, sex parties, and drugs. Were these contributing factors to their daughter's disappearance? What was life like harboring a hope that died the day Danielle's badly decomposed body was found? What did the van Dams feel upon hearing the death penalty levied on a man who's shown no remorse in the courtroom?

AN EASY TARGET – Escape to School -- (2 parts)
Chris Cuomo; Producer Muriel Pearson; Support Logan Nakyanzi
Primetime turns its hidden cameras to capture just how easily children can be tricked by potential kidnappers. It is a sobering experiment that urges parents to heed new critical information from Bob Stuber, former police officer and child safety expert, whose 'escape school' techniques might prevent your child from becoming a future target. Stuber shows Chris Cuomo and Primetime just how easy it is to lure children away in a kidnapping situation--in three scenarios: by gaining access to a child's house when he or she is home alone, by luring children into cars, and in public spaces (like a shopping mall). Stuber then teaches kids safety tips and defense mechanisms to employ when they have already been captured. He teaches techniques that save lives.

CENTRAL PARK JOGGER
Correspondent: Cynthia McFadden
In an exclusive interview with the man who claims he was the sole attacker in the brutal 1989 rape and beating of the Central Park jogger, Primetime Thursday conducts a detailed investigation of the facts and evidence presented.

20/20
Friday, July 5, 2002
OREGON ADOPTION
Correspondent: Lynn Sherr; Producer: Valerie Parker
Should adopted children have the right to know who their birth parents are? Gina Stonum lives in Oregon where the laws protect the parents. She fought to have the laws changed and it was changed. But some birth parents may not want to be known. Gina began her search for her own mother. She found her mom Sylvia and they finally met! Now she knows her history.

WHINING
Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Kristy Kendall
John Stossel with a report on the age old problem of kids with a whining problem. What does a parent do? A new book teaches parents how to put an end to it through various tactics, i.e. ignoring the whining, not setting up a pattern of responding and thus rewarding it.

CRISTINA
Correspondent: Deborah Roberts; Producer: David Puente
Christina Sarah Leggi – the Latin equivalent of Oprah – has one of the hottest talk shows on the air now. She came to Florida over 40 years ago. She was offered a talk show and has created a phenomenon. Her show is raunchy, soul bearing, sexy and over the top. She is smart, ambitious and honest.

GMAB-FAT BOY
Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer:Karen Saunders
Taylor Bibian is an overweight child. His whole family is overweight and they claim iit is due to genetics. He lives a very active life. The state of Florida took Taylor's family to court due to the belief that he was being neglected. The judge threw the case out of court.

MEDIA TRICKS
Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Frank Mastropolo
John Stossel reports on how the media often fools the public. Journalists often make mistakes by altering, spinning the story, or changing it all together. Several stars have been swapped in body. John says advertisers change history all the time. They digitally ad or change many ads in sporting events. Magazines tailor issues to the readers of their magazine, naming their city number one, etc.

MEDIA HYPE
Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Steve Brand
John Stossel reports. The media shows how horrible things happen to people everywhere. Quite often they change facts, exaggerate, hype it up, etc. The shark frenzy of last year is a good example of hype. Scientists say you have a 25 times better chance of getting killed by lightning. The media is a real business, and sometimes they have to make stories a bit bigger. Experts say that television communicates better to people and emotions carry despite bad journalism.

AUTO JUNKETS
Correspondent: Arnold Diaz; Producer: Ann Varney
Arnold Diaz reports. Cars are big stories, but does the press whitewash their stories? The car magazines may not tell the whole story because the journalists are writing the stories to help promote the cars. The major auto magazines seldom slam the cars. The ads in the magazines pay for the majority of the magazines. Journalist Matt Joseph says he wrote a bad article about Land Rover and they pressured him to print a different story. If you write a bad article about a car, you can lose the advertising account.

JOEY SKAGGS
Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Frank Mastropolo
The eccentric stories that come to the world sometimes are real, but some aren't. Artist Joe Scaggs is a media fracturist, by using the media he creates art. He creates a hoax and convinces the media it's real. Scaggs will continue to hoax the media, until they become more picky about their stories.

Friday, July 19, 2002
DIETS
Correspondent: Dr. Tim Johnson; Producer: Susan Wagner
Dr. Tim Johnson reports. There is a diet revolution going on in America. There is new evidence that the government's food pyramid is wrong! According to Journalist Gary Tauges of the New York Times, lawyers on Capitol Hill were responsible for promoting a low-fat high carb diet. It was classic bad science. Group studies have showed that we should eat more good fat and less bad fat.

BROTHER VS. SISTER
Correspondent: John Miller; Producer: John Bilotta
John Miller reports. A wealthy Texas business man, Charlie Mayhew was shot to death four years ago in his home. Many people in the small town of Sunnyvale, Texas believe that his son Chuck killed him. Chuck and his father argued about a business venture up until the day Charlie died. Tapes were found of a phone conversation between father and son where Chuck threatens his father. Charlie's daughter Mandy did not believe her brother committed the murder until she heard the tapes. Mandy filed a civil law suit against her brother and was awarded 26 million dollars. Chuck still proclaims his innocence. However, he was arrested this week for the murder.

CELINE DION
Correspondent: Barbara Walters; Producer: Alan Goldberg
Barbara Walters interviews Celine Dione. Two years ago Celine Dione opted to quit the music business to have a baby and stay home. She is ready to return! In her first interview since leaving she speaks to Barbara Walters openly about motherhood, her husband's gambling and her new album.

GMAB-POST OFFICE
Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Frank Mastropolo
John Stossel reports on the U.S. Postal Service and the hike in stamp rates. Stossel thinks that the postal service is a monopoly. Private package delivering companies give much better service than post offices. Stossel believes that the Postal Service is squandering America's money. John says "Give Me A Break!"

YOSEMITE – PART I
Correspondent: Elizabeth Vargas; Producer: Jon Meyersohn
Cary Stayner is on trial for killing three females murdered in Yosemite National Park as well as a forth female in the vicinity. Cary confessed to all four murders. When Cary was younger his brother Steven was kidnapped and held in Yosemite National Park and held captive for seven years. He himself wanted to kill women for decades, it was always in him. Carol and Julie Sund, along with Julie's friend Syvina were taking a trip to the Grand Canyon via Yosemite. They stopped at Cedar Lodge to stay over night. Cary worked at Cedar Lodge. He targeted the women.

YOSEMITE – PART II
Correspondent: Elizabeth Vargas; Producer: Jon Meyersohn
Cary pretended he needed to repair the bathroom in the room at the Cedar Lodge where the three women stayed. Once he was permitted to enter, he pulled a gun on them and tied them up. He strangled Carol and Sylvina and placed them in the trunk of their car. He then took Julie to a remote area to slash her throat. Carey was not initially considered a suspect and even assisted the police in searching the victim's room when Carol's family reported them missing. Carey disappeared to a nudist colony for awhile, returned to work and after three months had passed he had still not been charged. He then preyed on Joey Armstrong.

YOSEMITE – PART III
Correspondent: Elizabeth Vargas; Producer: Jon Meyersohn
Joey Armstrong was a young lady that lived in an isolated cabin in Yosemite. Cary attacked Joey but she put up a big fight! Unfortunately he overpowered her and threw her in his truck. Joey jumped out of the truck and ran away but he found her and slit her throat. Carey was arrested for the murder. In turn he surprised everyone by confessing to the murder.

YOSEMITE – PART IV
Correspondent: Elizabeth Vargas; Producer: Jon Meyersohn
Carey pled guilty to escape the death penalty for the murder of Joey Armstrong. He is also on trial for the other three murders. If he is found sane by experts along with guilty, he will be killed by lethal injection.

MOB WIFE
Correspondent: Bill Ritter; Producer: Marty Zied
Joey Joely and Joley Traidici seemed happily married on the outside, until Joley shot and killed Joey. Joey and Joely had been arguing over money. Joley shot Joey because he threatened to kill her father if she did not ask her father for more money. Her defense is that she was an abused wife and could not take it anymore. Joey was six feet tall, 250 pounds and he had a temper. On numerous occasions he abused her both physically and mentally. She claims she had no choice but to kill him.

DIVA BEHAVIOR
Correspondent: Chris Connelly; Producer: Reid Orvedahl
The stars of the concert series most often make strange backstage requirements in their contracts other than money. The Smoking Gun.com lists them all. Van Halen requested boozed, Christina Aquilera wanted Flinstone vitamins. Aerosmith wants several large rooms and Johnny Cash wants a mirror, sink, paper towels and a coat rack.

CIRCLES AND SIGNS
Correspondent: Bob Brown; Producer: Nola Safro
The mystery of the crop circle has confused people for years. The first crop circles appeared in the hillsides of England. There were many theories on what caused the circles to appear. Some say they were made by something from another world, others say they are man made. The phenomenon has evolved into a holy war over who is right.

GMAB-MISSING LYNX
Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Kristy Kendall
The Lynx, also known as the Short Nosed Sucker is an explosive little animal. Deemed in need of protection. The Fish and Wildlife Department shut off irrigation to farms and have infested the ecology departments. They claimed they were just testing the system. John Stossel says "Give Me A Break!"

Friday, August 9, 2002
MOTHER DELORES
Correspondent: Bob Brown; Producer: Joe Pfefferling
Dolores Hart was at one time one of Hollywood's youngest stars. She gave it up to become a nun. Hart is notorious for being the first woman to give Elvis Presley his onscreen kiss. She loves that she is one of the only people left to know of his innocence. Dolores was engaged to marry Don Robinson, a realtor and then she realized

CAMBODIA ADOPTIONS-PART I
Correspondent: Tom Jarriel; Producer: Joanna Breen
The U.S government has denied visas to Cambodian children that have been adopted by various American couples. They are questioning whether or not the children are legitimate orphans. The American parents are devastated and fearful. They are being given sketchy information but they say they will stay in Cambodia until they get their children.

CAMBODIA ADOPTIONS-PART II
Correspondent: Tom Jarriel ; Producer: Joanna Breen
The American families waited weeks to see if they could finally adopt their children. They were denied. Apparently there have been problems in the past with adopting these children. However, the American families were never forewarned.

GMAB-CHILD LABOR
Producer: Frank Mastropolo; Support: Terry Dollard
John Stossel says the labor department has gone too far in protecting children from working. Many businesses need to hire youth to perform regular chores such as sweeping, getting rid of garbage, etc. However, they are not permitted to hire under anyone under 16. Many children say they want to work, but they are prevented from doing so. John Stossel says, "Give Me A Break!"

THE CELL
Correspondent: John Miller; Producer: Terry Lichstein; Marty Zied
The video version of John Miller's book "The Cell." John gives an analysis of what might have been different on 9/11 had the U.S. intelligence agencies pieced together the clues leading up to the attack. John took a trip to Afghanistan and Pakistan and spoke with the Afghan President, Hamid Karzai.

THE HUNT FOR OSAMA – PART I
Correspondent: John Miller; Producer: Terry Lichstein; John Bilotta
8,000 troops search day and night for Osama Bin Laden. Osama Bin Laden is still at large with no proof as to whether or not he is alive or dead. Lt. General Dan McNeil is commanding some of the forces searching for Osama. He believes that Osama is alive. The American forces cannot leave yet.

THE HUNT FOR OSAMA - PART II
Correspondent: John Miller; Producer: Terry Lichstein; John Bilotta
Hamid Karzai is the President of Afghanistan. His security detail are the American elite forces. He knows that he might die any day which is why he has requested the American troops protect him. He says that Osama Bin Laden is not a Muslim in his eyes. He is simply a murderer and he wishes Osama dead.

DEAD CELEBRITIES
Correspondent: Chris Connelly; Producer: Reid Orvedahl; Producer Susan Welsch
The stars, once in light – now in marble are making a comeback – but they don't even know it! The faces, bodies, old movie clips, etc. of some dead celebrities are being used to promote/endorse different movies, products, etc. Robert Richaman, agent for the dead, says that John Wayne has been raising money for his cancer foundation. Many ads have struck too close to the heart of some of the fans. The marketers are aware that they are involving a person who didn't have a say. But advertisers say that the appeal is "heavenly!"

PRISCILLA
Correspondent: Barbara Walters; Producer: Brad LaRosa
In 1985, Priscilla Presley sat down with Barbara Walters regarding a book she had written entitled "Elvis and Me." She said that Elvis was very controlling. He controlled her looks, what she wore, her life completely! She was young and naïve. She met Elvis at a very young age and moved in with him. They slept in the same bed for six years but he refused to have sex with her. He wanted to marry a virgin. One year to their wedding night, Priscilla gave birth to Lisa Marie. Elvis would not have sex with her after that. It was a bizarre relationship. They would spend days on end hiding from the world in a dark, cold bedroom. He was temperamental and sometimes abusive. She finally left him. But she says she still loves him 'til this day!

LOOKISM - OPEN
Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Steve Brand
John Stossel presents a special report on good looks. Looks seem to play a part in everything. The better looking you are, the more perks, attention, etc. you receive. Many people don't like their looks and many choose to have cosmetic surgery.

BEAUTY AND THE BRAIN
Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Michael Pressman
John Stossel says that men are fools for a good looking woman!! Scientists wanted to know what was going on in a man's head when he sees a woman. Stossel was flashed several pictures of women. The pictures caused a certain section of the brain to light up. Psychologist Helen Fisher, believes these tests might help men prove that they can't help responding to a pretty face.

LOOKISM – PART I
Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Steve Brand
Most attractive people will be given assistance on the street if in need. As part of an experiment, two actresses, Michelle and Tracy, were positioned on the street pretending to have run out of gas. Some pedestrians stopped for Michelle but didn't really help. Tracy on the other hand, being the more attractive of the two, received more help. Six people ran to get her fuel. A similar experiment was done with two male actors, Mark and Mike, pretending to interview for a job. Mike, the less attractive of the two was told he would be called, but never was. Mark, was offered the job.

LOOKISM – PART II
Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Steve Brand
Even children are susceptible to looks. Another experiment was conducted with children. Two actresses, Debbie and Susan were placed in a school as teachers. The two were identical except that Debbie was the more attractive one. Most children thought that Debbie was the smarter of the two. The children admitted this was due to the fact that Debbie was prettier than Susan.

SHORT MEN
Correspondent: Lynn Sherr Producer: Martin Phillips
Shorter men have all sorts of problems. Women agree that men need to be taller. The average male if five feet 9 inches. An experiment was set-up with three men. All three men were put in a line-up with women watching them. The women always picked the taller men, despite adorning the shorter men with awards, great credentials, etc. The shorter men knew they would not be picked.

DNA RAPE
Correspondent: Brian Ross; Producer: Brenda Breslauer
Brian Ross reports. Due to lack of funds many police departments are unable to run DNA tests on neglected rape kits. In an effort to see whether or not such testing would make a difference, the Baltimore Police and ABC agreed to split the cost for processing DNA tests on 50 rape kits that were merely sitting on a shelf. Needless to say, several rapists were caught.

PIZNER QUINTUPLETS
Correspondent: Bob Brown; Producer: Nola Safro
The Pizner parents were originally interviewed by Barbara Walter's in 1985 when they had their quintuplets. The decision to have all five children was made because their parents offered financial and emotional support. Now 18 years later all five children are about to enter college. Each child with their own skills, traits and gifts. The parents feel that they are getting a massive dose of "the empty nest syndrome."

NIGHTMARES
Correspondent: ; Producer: Joy Ciarca-Levy
Recurring nightmares occur frequently. Lisa was walking toward the Twin Towers when she saw people falling from the buildings. Deb says that she feels her plane crashing in her head. Roberta was kidnapped and repeatedly raped. Barry Craco, expert, says that nightmares help with recovery from the pain and terror of tragedies, traumas, etc. He says they can be gotten rid of by changing the images. He uses imagery rehearsal therapy. By making things up in your head, then thinking about it before you go to bed can help change the nightmares in just weeks, even days.

GMAB-HARRY POTTER
Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Frank Mastropolo
John Stossel does a piece on the "Harry Potter" books. There seem to be conflicting opinions about the books. Children love the books and claim to know that they are make believe. John interviews Reverend Joseph Chambers who claims that Harry Potter bears the sign of the devil. The Reverend believes that children are reading the books and trying to create spells against each other.

FORT BRAGG

Correspondent: John Miller; Producer: Eric Hanan

John Miller reports. Four army officers killed their wives at Fort Bragg. Three of the four had recently returned from Afghanistan. Is there any connection? The four men were specially trained to deal with stress on the battlefield. Dr. Andy Morgan, psychology professor says that soldiers need to rework being with family after combat. But men are discouraged from seeking help. No soldier wants to show weakness. If they are seeking help their security rating can be reduced. The army is conducting an investigation to find the correlation between these soldiers and the murders they committed.

COLORED CONTACTS

Correspondent: Arnold Diaz; Producer: Audrey Latman

There is a new teenage fad – colored contacts. Not just normal blue eyed, green eyed contacts but all kinds of weird designs and colors. These lenses are being purchased in gas stations and just about anywhere else. Optometrist, Dr. Thomas Steinemen says that these contacts are very dangerous. The lenses are dyed, they scratch corneas, pass diseases and can cause blindness. The teens are not concerned about the doctor's warnings.

DEAD PETS

Correspondent: Chris Cuomo; Producer: Lynn Redmond

Pet owners are incredibly bonded with their pets. It's like a parent-to-child relationship. Mike McCulla, taxidermist, gives people the ability to keep their pets indefinitely. He freeze dries pets, giving people comfort. He says that it is so bizarre but that it has given his work a whole new meaning. Mike feels this is no less dignified than any other method of preservation.

GMAB-PRISON LOAF

Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Kristy Kendall

Prison inmates are complaining – when they misbehave, their punishment is to be given only a bread loaf and water per meal.

Friday, September 20, 2002

CHRISTOPHER REEVE

Correspondent: Barbara Walters

Christopher Reeve talks with Barbara Walters about his range of movement, touch and feeling, and about intimacy with his wife.

MELANOMA

Medical Editor Dr. Timothy Johnson

ABC News reports on what could be a breakthrough approach to the treatment of melanoma, a deadly form of skin cancer. Dr. Steven Rosenberg, Chief of Surgery at the National Cancer Institute, publishes the results of his latest experimental treatment on 13 patients.

GMAB-PERFECT KIDS

Correspondent: John Stossel

Perfection is applauded; however, can you have too much of a good thing? In his "Family Fix" segment, John Stossel reports that perfectionism in children may be unhealthy.

PRISON MARRIAGE

Correspondent: Barbara Walters

In an exclusive interview with Barbara Walters, Tammi Menendez talks about marrying Erik Menendez, one of the Menendez brothers who murdered his parents in 1989 in Beverly Hills, CA, and who is serving a life sentence without the possibility of parole. Erik and Tammi, who met through letter writing, tell the personal details of their relationship and how they make it work.

JEWELRY COLLECTION
