for
4th Quarter 2010
October 1 through December 31, 2010

Quarterly Summary:
October 2010-December 2010

October 2010:

We broke the story about a drug gaining popularity called Spice. It's a synthetic form of marijuana. Public safety officials are trying to crack down on it but it's not an illegal drug. Local leaders are in the process of trying to make it an illegal drug. They were unsuccessful with another legal drug called Salvia.

We localized the national story on bullying. We took a look at what is going on in local schools. We also covered a local conference devoted to the topic.

The election was another big story this month. We had two key races getting a lot of attention. The first one was the senate race between Joe Miller, Lisa Murkowski and Scott McAdams. The second one was the governor race between Sean Parnell and Ethan Berkowitz. We replaced our 5/6pm shows one evening and produced a governor debate.

Finally, Anchorage Mayor Dan Sullivan unveiled his budget proposal for next year. Many cuts were being proposed. At the same time, the Anchorage School District was holding public hearings on its proposed budget for next year.

November 2010:

The month started off with the election. We blew out our coverage on Election Day and went live from Election Central for all the shows. All the races were decided except for one...the U.S. Senate race. The results came down to counting out the write-in ballots. We followed each day how the counting was going. When the results were announced, Joe Miller wouldn't concede and filed lawsuits to fight the results. By the end of the month, the race was still undecided.

Anchorage School District had an outbreak of bed bugs in one of its schools. This came on the heels of a major outbreak of the bugs in the Lower 48. We did extensive folos to this story.

We did a folo up on the bullying issues we covered last month. The Anchorage School District held a town hall meeting to address the issue.

We did a weeklong series looking at Mayor Dan Sullivan's proposed budget for 2011. We called the series Pork or Priority. We profiled five Muni departments and posed the question if the proposed monies were pork spending or priority spending.

Towards the end of the month, we had our first big snow. We took a look at what was impacted...especially the Anchorage School District and whether it should have been open, delayed or closed due to weather.

December 2010:

The biggest story for this month was a continuation from last month. It was the ongoing dispute over U.S. Senate race between Lisa Murkowski and Joe Miller. Miller took his fight all the way to the Alaska Supreme Court. Miller made his final appeal right before the holidays. The court ruled against him and on New Year's Eve, he gave up his fight.

A cargo ship called the Golden Seas went adrift in the Bering Sea after it lost power. It was carrying tons of cooking oil. The Coast Guard was called in to tow the ship back to the mainland.

The Anchorage budget proposal continued with coverage during this month. The mayor made an announcement about proposed audits. We profiled how this would impact the Anchorage School District.

There were several wolf attacks in the village of Port Heiden. Several dogs and cats were being killed by three separate packs of wolves. State biologists eventually went on a wolf kill to eliminate the threat to residents.

Governor Parnell unveiled his budget proposal for 2011. We took a look at some of the items not being funded and funded.

We did a follow up on the bed bug issue that hit the area in November. We did a profile on a new tool, a dog, to fight the outbreak. There is a dog that specializes in the problem.

We ended the month with a look at the new permit for Anchorage residents being able to use fireworks on New Year's Eve. It was the first time residents were allowed to light their own fireworks.
