Crime

A convicted sex offender, known to the public simply as John Doe, went to court during the Third Quarter to contest the enforcement of a new state law regarding where certain convicted sex offenders can live. Since Doe filed his complaint, a registered sex offender in Monticello filed a similar claim.

The city of Lafayette learned in August that it will receive a $1 million federal grant for the Weed and Seed program. The program is designed to “weed out” crime and “plant seeds” of success in near-downtown neighborhoods.

Education

The Tippecanoe School Corporation decided to slow construction of a new elementary school during the third quarter, based in large part on rising home mortgage foreclosures. The TSC Board decided to push the opening of the new Wyandotte Elementary School back to 2011. Superintendent Richard Wood says home foreclosures and a decline in the housing market made the delay the corporation's best option.

School corporations returned to class without incident during the third quarter. However ongoing heat problems forced some individual schools to dismiss class early for lack of air conditioning.
